

42ND ANNUAL CONFERENCE MIAMI

Program and Handbook

A conference presented by the International Association of University Libraries

JUNE 12 - 16, 2022

Message From the IATUL President

Dear Delegates, Colleagues, and Friends,

It is my pleasure to welcome you to the 42nd Annual IATUL Conference hosted by the University of Miami and Florida International University in Miami, Florida.

The last two years have been a difficult period for all of us.

We cared maybe more than ever before for the health and safety of our loved ones, and at the same time, we faced the challenge of maintaining services for library users at the highest possible level.

More than ever, libraries have become involved in remote work and teaching, providing additional tools and services for users who have been away from the library yet required library resources. As a result, new skills and ways of working have become part of our everyday life.

Nevertheless, thanks to the organizers' commitment, we were able to experience the 2021 annual conference in Porto and the autumn seminars in Innsbruck and Gdańsk.

The 41st Annual IATUL Conference in Porto was the first online conference in the history of the organization. Furthermore, this year's conference in Miami is the first hybrid conference in the history of IATUL, which allows participants to meet both on-site and remotely.

I want to extend a warm welcome to both the conference participants on-site in Miami and those joining us online.

IATUL always had and still aims to address all topics and challenges of library management and services. In the past, conference subjects have included collaboration, metrics, architecture, information literacy, leadership methods, e-research support, librarians' skills, scholarly publishing, open science, and so much more.

The IATUL Annual Conference is an excellent opportunity to hear about the latest academic library initiatives, visit award-winning libraries, and network with colleagues and friends from all over the world.

As higher education moves beyond the COVID-19 pandemic, libraries are positioned to lead in an environment where teaching, learning, research, and work practices are shifting. The 42nd Annual IATUL Conference will provide excellent opportunities to explore, learn, and share diverse experiences.

The conference theme is "Weaving Our Future: Creativity, Innovation, and Transformation in Libraries." Examples of topics that align with the theme include, among others: the changing landscape of research, open science, problem-based interdisciplinary research, trends in teaching and learning, permeable library facilities, library spaces, telework, workflow redesign, inclusive practices, and new skillsets.

This year, IATUL will be developing a new strategy. So today, I would like to invite all our members to participate in this process, which is essential to us.

The development of a new strategy and a discussion on the existing and newly emerging Special Interest Groups tasks will introduce us to a new era of IATUL's activity. The title of this year's conference perfectly reflects our goals and ambitions.

A university library, its mission, and its entire infrastructure are part of the university and its mission. Taking up "Weaving Our Future: Creativity, Innovation, and Transformation in Libraries" as the topic of the 2022 Annual IATUL Conference reflects the significance context has for our work as service providers.

On behalf of the IATUL Board of Directors, I would like to express my sincere thanks to Anne Prestamo and Charles Eckman, the vice president of IATUL, their teams, and all the organizing committees and their members from the University of Miami and Florida International University Libraries and beyond for creating this opportunity for us.

Thanks to their efforts, we can meet after such a long time in an extraordinary atmosphere and the ideal environment.

Finally, I would also like to thank the sponsors of this conference for their generous support.

Dr. Anna Watek

IATUL President

Director of the Gdańsk University of Technology Library

Message From the Conference Co-Chairs

Dear Colleagues and Friends,

On behalf of the Conference Local Arrangements and Program Committees, we warmly welcome you to Miami, South Florida, and the 42nd annual conference of the International Association of University Libraries.

This location is on the ancestral homeland of the Miccosukee, Seminole, and Tequesta peoples. This acknowledgement is one of the ways in which we work to educate ourselves about this land, its history, and our relationships with the land and each other.

Modern Miami is variously described as the “Crossroads of the Americas” or “Gateway to the Americas,” and we believe these metaphors reinforce the value of hosting this important international meeting of research and university libraries.

Miami’s location also places us in the bullseye of many pressing issues facing the world: climate change, sea level rise, climate-related extreme events, and water quality standards, to name a few. Miami serves as a living laboratory and drives many of the research agendas at both Florida International University and the University of Miami.

The conference title, “Weaving our Future: Creativity, Innovation, and Transformation in Libraries,” is indicative of the times in which we all live. We are experiencing a late-pandemic moment during which we understand that our personal and professional lives have been forever transformed. We have all experienced tremendous challenges — including dramatic transformations of the ways in which higher education and its libraries define their mission and conduct their work. We hope that this conference will provide us with an opportunity to reflect upon and learn from our respective experiences of the past two years. And during these conversations, we hope to see the outlines of a future vision for university libraries worldwide.

We trust that you will find the conference discussions stimulating, that you will forge new contacts and friendships, and that you will also have an opportunity to enjoy the beauty of South Florida during and following the conference.

International Association of University Libraries (IATUL)

IATUL was founded in Düsseldorf, Germany, as the International Association of Technological University Libraries in May 1955, as an international forum for the exchange of ideas relevant to librarianship in technological universities throughout the world. IATUL is a voluntary international non-governmental organization of a group of libraries, represented by their library directors or senior managers, who have responsibility for information services and resources management. The expanded name of IATUL was changed to the International Association of Scientific and Technological University Libraries at the 2009 General Assembly to reflect the broader range of institutions, which now make up the membership of the association. At the 2014 Annual Conference in Helsinki, the General Assembly of IATUL decided to extend its mandate to include all university libraries internationally, irrespective of their academic specialization. This change reflects the membership profile of IATUL where the vast majority of institutions now belong to comprehensive universities. Therefore, its name was changed to be the International Association of University Libraries.

IATUL is an excellent example of the development of an effective informal international network between libraries of similar type, with a common high level of professional expertise and offering a similar range of services to their users. Many of the members of IATUL provide services, not only to the teaching and research staff and students of their own university, but also to industrial organizations and national research institutions, in their respective countries.

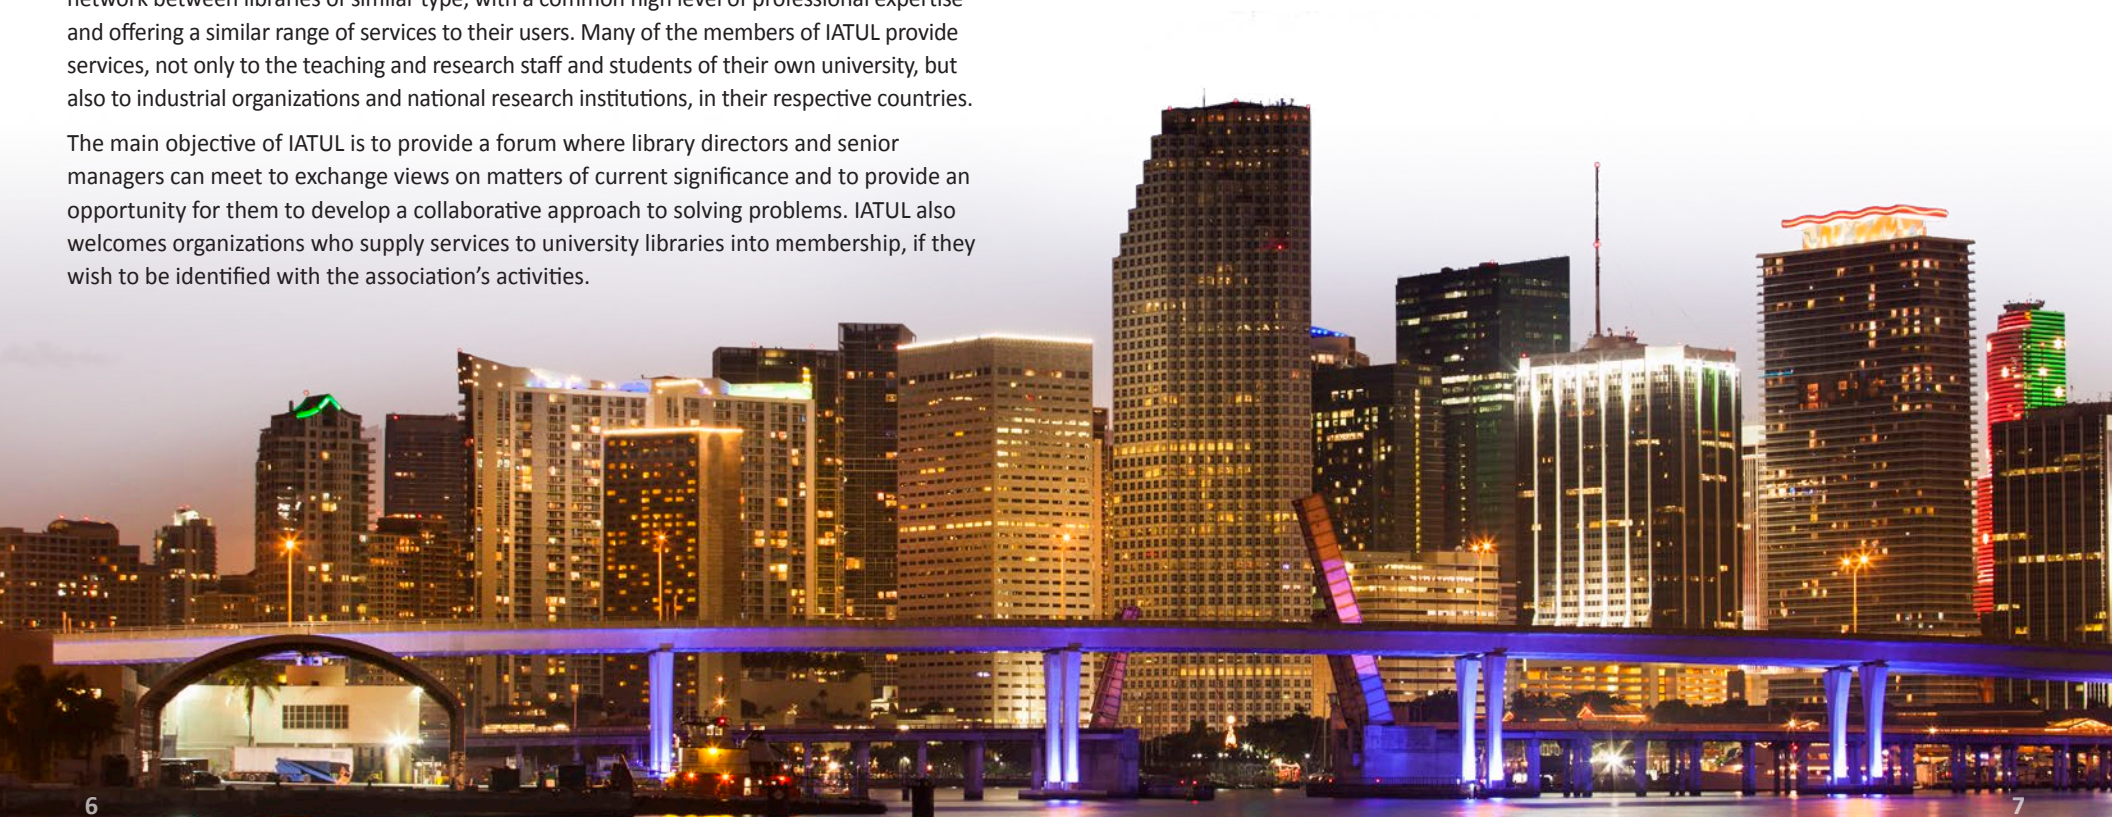

The main objective of IATUL is to provide a forum where library directors and senior managers can meet to exchange views on matters of current significance and to provide an opportunity for them to develop a collaborative approach to solving problems. IATUL also welcomes organizations who supply services to university libraries into membership, if they wish to be identified with the association's activities.

Florida International University Libraries

The Green Library and Hubert Library represent the physical and metaphorical hearts of their respective campuses. Uniquely positioned at the intersection of information, technology, and innovation, the Florida International University Libraries engage with local and global partners to foster student-centered learning and to support internationally recognized research and scholarship. Whether through in-person or online interactions, the Libraries aim to be a partner and source of quality learning and exploration.

University of Miami Libraries

The University of Miami Libraries provides faculty, students, researchers, and staff with the highest quality access to collections, information services, learning support, and digital expertise in support of the University's mission to transform lives. The Libraries welcomes and incorporates advances and innovations in information technology and scholarly communication to ensure that our users can locate and use global information resources in all formats.
